IN CONVERSATION WITH CROMA DESIGN

Ryan Martin & Amy Kent - Croma Design

In February of 2007 Echo and I had the opportunity to meet Ryan and Amy, principals of Croma Design at the IDS show in Toronto. That year they had an installation called "Red Riding Hood Residence". It was a very sexy pad for a modern, chic, and sophisticated young woman.

Ryan and Amy are living proof of what a young and really talented design duo can do. Their design sensibility and their ability to create cool spaces is really inspiring for other young designers like us.

Please see our conversation with Ryan and Amy below.

Iván - What is story behind Croma, How the two of you meet?

Ryan - We met when were both at Cecconi Simone. I was new to the firm when one day the "cool kids" asked me to join them for lunch... of course Amy was one of them. We realized early on that this would work.

love the use of mobiles to fill the volume of space...especially the wood ones in the first few pics.

Great entry, these two are so much fun! I also think the story about Ryan's camera collection is really interesting.
